We Are Your Travel Advocates

True story. One sunny morning this summer I was lowering our awning when a panic-stricken woman approached me asking where she might find a ladies' room. I looked down Bank Street to Muddy Waters, but wasn't sure she'd make it, so I broke our no-public-bathroom-for-people-on-the-street-policy and invited her into our office. Her lady-friend attempted polite conversation while waiting by stating, "I didn't know travel agents still existed. Why would anyone bother paying you when they can book so easily on the internet?" A voice in my head wanted to say, "because we have nice restrooms," but I again went with my second instinct and told her we don't charge for our services.

We are paid by the supplier, so we shop all of them for you, and use our years of experience to find you the best trip to suit your tastes and requirements at the best rate. The best buy isn't always the cheapest price. Gateway cities, hotel locations, local attractions, travel dates, are just a few of the factors that can make a big difference when booking a trip. Choosing the right cruise line for your age group and interests is just as important as cabin location.

We offer advice from years of experience. I am always impressed by the person who comes into our office with all of their information lined up, but wanting to compare the internet trip they are about to book with what we have to offer. That is a smart consumer. Of course, I love to then hear our awesome agents offer them suggestions and comments, and then disclose the same price or better. How many times have I heard these inquirers state, "Wow, you just told me more information and came up with a better rate in 10 minutes then I found in two hours on the internet last night."

Travel agents work as an advocate should a problem arise. I could write a book on the people we have helped to get home in an emergency, obtain refunds, or make a supplier live up to its promises. Travel is what we do every day, all day. And, we are really, really good at it.

QUINTESSENTIAL COSTA RICA

For many years, Costa Rica was a well-kept secret for those in the know – biologists, backpackers, nature lovers and beachcombers – but that's all changed. Today the country is a major international vacation destination. However, despite the recent boom in popularity, Costa Rica remains a place rich in natural wonders and far from the maddening crowds.

Visitors to Costa Rica are often overwhelmed by the wealth of natural attractions they find – rhinoceros beetles, fluorescent green grasshoppers, three-toed sloths, multicolored toucans and Howler monkeys – to name just a few exotic creatures.

Costa Rica remains one of the few places still in its pristine state. Lush forests and stunning coastlines offer visitors an up-close experience with some of the most diverse bird, flower and animal populations on the planet.

The region shelters myriad forms of vegetation, including more than 800 species of birds, 205 varieties of mammals and 378 different amphibians and reptiles.

TRAVEL TRENDS

SEABOURN QUEST TO BE DELIVERED IN MAY 2011

Construction of The Yachts of Seabourn's third new ultra-luxury yacht, Seabourn Quest, is progressing well, and the company expects to take delivery of the vessel several weeks earlier than anticipated in May 2011. Following the delivery, Seabourn will operate two pre-inaugural cruises: a three-day roundtrip voyage from Monte Carlo, and an eight-day cruise from Monte Carlo to Barcelona.

Seabourn Quest's maiden season will include seven-day Eastern Mediterranean cruises, operating alternately between Athens and Istanbul, and Venice and Athens, as well as a seven-day Black Sea voyage.

ADVENTURES BY DISNEY ADDS EGYPT TO ITINERARIES

Adventures By Disney has introduced its 2011 itineraries and adds a new destination to its collection – Egypt: "Pyramids, Pharaohs & Ancient Treasures."

Tour highlights include a three-day Nile River cruise and visits to the riverside towns of Aswan and Luxor, as well as privately guided tours of temple ruins, including pharaohs Tutankhamen and Ramses VI. "Whether discovering the beauty of the United States or traveling the furthest parts of the globe, such as Egypt, Adventures by Disney provides the perfect way to travel as a family," said Karl Holz, president of Adventures by Disney.

GENERAL TOURS PRESENTS "VISIONS OF VIETNAM" TOUR

The new 12-day "Visions of Vietnam & Angkor Wat" tour from General Tours is an in-depth journey through Indochina that features deluxe and luxury hotels, an elegant overnight cruise through Ha Long Bay and 26 meals in carefully chosen restaurants.

Other highlights include the Cu Chi Tunnels, Saigon, the seaside city of Hue, Siam Reap and unhurried exploration of the magnificent jungle ruins of Angkor. Contact your travel professional for 2011 travel dates.

NEW EUROPEAN CRUISE TOUR OPTIONS FROM PRINCESS

Princess Cruises has unveiled two new cruise tour options for passengers on European cruises next year, providing them the opportunity to explore the mysteries of ancient Petra in Jordan or to enjoy a cruise up the dramatic Rhine River.

The 16-night "Ancient Petra and the Dead Sea" cruise tour steeps travelers in the history of the ancient world with visits to Jerash, Petra and the Dead Sea in Jordan in addition to a cruise to Israel and Egypt. The new 20-night "Timeless Cities of the Rhine River" cruise tour offers passengers a week-long cruise up the scenic Rhine River by riverboat combined with a Princess sailing to Scandinavia and Russia.

HOLLAND AMERICA LINE SETS SAIL FOR HAWAII AND FRENCH POLYNESIA

In fall of 2011 and winter of 2012, two Holland America Line ships – ms Westerdam and ms Rotterdam – will sail three 30-day "Circle Hawaii, Tahiti and Marquesas Islands" explorations, visiting beautiful and picturesque islands throughout French Polynesia and the Aloha state.

Westerdam's voyage sails round trip from San Diego, Calif., and departs Sept. 29, 2011. Rotterdam also sails round trip from San Diego and departs Jan. 4 and March 4, 2012. Ports of call include Hilo, Lahaina, Honolulu and Hawaii; Fanning Island, Kiribati; Rarotonga in the Cook Islands; and Raiatea, Bora Bora, Papeete, Moorea, Rangiroa and Nuku Hiva, French Polynesia. Contact your travel professional for details.

TAUCK REVEALS DETAILS OF NEWEST RIVERBOAT

Tauk has revealed that the newest ship in its fleet of award-winning European riverboats will be named the ms Treasures. Following its christening this August in Germany, the ship will sail on five different Tauk itineraries, ranging from the company's popular "The Blue Danube" cruise to its 24-day, transcontinental "Grand European Cruise."

The ms Treasures will feature the same configuration of staterooms as the company's other ships, with capacity limited to just 118 guests, plus enhanced cabin décor and new beds – additions which will be implemented fleet-wide.

COSMOPOLITAN OF LAS VEGAS OPENS

The Cosmopolitan of Las Vegas, the highly anticipated luxury resort at the heart of the Las Vegas Strip, officially opened its doors to the public on Dec. 15, 2010. The new 2,995-room resort features oversized residential style living space with expansive one-of-a-kind private terraces.

"The Cosmopolitan is about creating a resort experience set apart from anything that exists right now in Las Vegas," says John Unwin, CEO of The Cosmopolitan. Resort features include a massive 100,00-square-foot gaming casino, three distinct pool environments and the desert-inspired Sahra Spa and Hammam.

ENJOY THE GOOD LIFE IN CALIFORNIA WINE COUNTRY

BY GRETCHEN ZAUNER

California may be best known for its beaches, mountains and laid-back lifestyle, but it's also known for producing exceptional wines. In fact, the Napa and Sonoma valleys have attracted visitors from around the world since 1862.

Culinary Institute of America, Greystone

In Napa Valley alone there are now more than 200 wineries, among them the famous Robert Mondavi Winery. And Sonoma Valley, which has equally as many wineries, can claim the rich chardonnay grape growing Carneros region as its own. Sonoma Valley is the birthplace of the California wine industry and is home to some of the earliest vineyards and wineries in the state.

There's plenty to see and enjoy in wine country, especially when it comes to food and drink. Many wineries offer picnic facilities, and what can be better than sampling a couple of great vintages, buying a bottle of wine, and parking your friends and family on the bench while enjoying the wine with a delectable lunch from a local deli. California's wine country is also known for its world-class restaurants, marvelously blending the flavors of France, Italy and California.

If you think grapes are made solely for consumption, think again. At the Health Spa Napa Valley, you can indulge in grape seed mud wraps and therapeutic massages.

Hot air ballooning

In Sonoma, you'll find a laid-back atmosphere where family-owned wineries treat visitors like friends.

In fact, California's wine country is home to a long list of spa properties. In Calistoga, situated on the northern edge of Napa Valley, guests of Solage Calistoga enjoy the Spa Solage, featuring invigorating treatments and therapies. Once your mind and body are refreshed, enjoy dining at Solbar, named Best New Restaurant in Napa Valley.

For a truly unique culinary experience, visit the Culinary Institute of America at Greystone. Housed in one of Napa Valley's most historic and majestic properties, visitors can enjoy dining and cooking demonstrations, participate in lectures, and may even have the opportunity to cook in a professionally equipped kitchen. Immerse yourself in the food and wine culture of the Napa Valley as you evaluate varietals in a tasting theater tailor-made for professional wine education.

In Sonoma, you'll find a laid-back atmosphere where family-owned wineries treat visitors like friends. The valley also boasts having had Jack London as one of its residents. Be sure to visit Jack London State Historic Park and walk the pleasant trail leading to the ruins of a house London built yet never occupied.

You can also take a tram tour of the grape fields and winery at the Benziger Family Winery. Specializing in premium estate and Sonoma County wines, the winery also incorporates well-known artists in designing their labels.

To get a breathtaking panoramic view of wine country on a clear day, take flight in a hot-air balloon, soaring over vineyards and mountains. Following the flight, enjoy a private champagne brunch amid some of the most picturesque scenery in the country.

If you prefer to be more grounded, take a guided bike tour of the region's rolling, vine-covered hills and wineries.

Train lovers can tour the wine country in style aboard a restored 1915 Pullman railroad car, courtesy of the Napa Valley Wine Train. The three-hour train ride takes passengers through historic Napa to the quaint village of St. Helena and includes a gourmet meal.

You can even travel through the vineyards to the wineries in a carriage drawn by two horses. Enjoy the easy pace, beautiful scenery and world-class wines.

Cheers and bon appetite!

Approximately 2,000 varieties of orchids thrive here. The country's sensitivity to the ecology and dedication to its preservation is renowned with an intricate system of protected areas that cover more than 25 percent of its land area.

But you'll find the geography of the area just as fascinating, whether you're hiking through the verdant marshland of Palo Verde National Park, or looking up at the impressive Arenal Volcano as it spews fire and hot magma into the starry nighttime sky.

There is no place on earth with quite such a concentration of wonders. Go game fishing in the Atlantic one day, then in the Pacific the next. See Scarlet Macaws, Emerald Basilisk Lizards, and brilliant green tree frogs with fingers as orange as the flesh of tangerines. Visit four volcanoes, watch the world's largest geyser, and take on Class 5 rapids. All this, in one tiny, green country.

THE DAZZLING DALMATIAN COAST

BY GEORGE MCMANUS

Dubrovnik, Croatia

Hvar, Croatia

The long, rugged Dalmatian coast, backed by high mountains with hundreds of offshore islands, is fast becoming one of Europe's most popular vacation spots. In this region of Southeastern Europe you'll find a rich blend of history and culture, including many Greek and Roman ruins, enlightening museums, delicious Mediterranean-inspired cuisine and hundreds of picturesque islands and charming medieval towns just waiting to be explored.

George Bernard Shaw called Dubrovnik "the pearl of the Adriatic" because of its incomparable architectural heritage. The gleaming marble streets of Dubrovnik are lined with baroque buildings punctuated by beautifully sculpted Renaissance fountains, ramparts and facades. Dubrovnik's scenic medieval walls, which are an UNESCO World Heritage Site, are the most intact and impressive in the Adriatic and head the long list of the city's must-see sights.

But Dubrovnik is more than a fascinating old town with an ancient history. It's also a first class Adriatic resort. Stretching out from the historical center is a network of beaches to laze away the day in the sun. Offshore, the crystal-clear sea is dotted with wooded islands that make for great day trips. And the array of cafés, bars and clubs in and around the Old Town ensure that Dubrovnik at night is never dull. The nearby seaside town of Cavtat is the southernmost town in Croatia, and makes for a nice getaway from the crowds of Dubrovnik. The promenade along the water is a postcard-perfect spot for shopping, dining and soaking up the sun.

Speaking of sunshine, the island of Hvar boasts 2,718 hours of it a year, making it Croatia's sunniest island. In recent years it's become one of southern Europe's most visited islands, attracting a diverse crowd of backpackers, yachters, honeymooners and pretty much anyone who visits Dalmatia. The throbbing nightlife and Venetian architecture of the Old Town is the highlight. The island is extraordinarily verdant and lush, filled with lavender, heather and pines, and the coastline is heavily indented with an abundance of rocky coves, making it ideal for snorkeling and diving. Old Town makes an excellent base for exploring, as there are several other charming towns to see, including Stari Grad, the tiny port of Jelsa, the picturesque village of Vrboska or the even more miniscule port of Milna on the southern coast. Day trips to the Pakleni Islands also offer excellent scuba diving.

Farther north, Zadar is one of the Adriatic's most historically interesting towns with a wealth of sightseeing and exciting nightlife. Zadar was founded by the Romans, attacked by the Turks, ruled by the Austrians and made part of Italy until 1943 when the Germans moved in. In recent years Zadar has undergone a startling revival. Cafés and bars are filled, museums and churches have been restored and tourists pour in to take boats to nearby islands.

No visit to Dalmatia is complete without a stop in the boisterous port of Split – Croatia's second largest city. Diocletian's Palace is the city's prize jewel, and dates back to 300 AD. The palace is more like a city within a city, and covers more than 10 acres. Part imperial villa and part fortified camp, it is remarkable for the diversity of shapes within its architecture, which include the octagonal domed Cathedral St. Domnius, the rectangular Temple of Jupiter, the cruciform lower level of the Vestibule and circular temples to Cybele and Venus.

Perhaps one of the best-kept secrets of Dalmatia is the city of Kotor in Montenegro. Founded by the Romans, Kotor developed in the Middle Ages into an important commercial and artistic center with its own famous schools of masonry and iconography. Throughout its turbulent history, a variety of impressive buildings have been erected. The largest of these is the St. Tryphon Cathedral. Much of the city was damaged during an earthquake in 1979, but it has been painstakingly restored. The city is once again flourishing and is now a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Zadar, Croatia

Visiting Dalmatia

There are many great ways to visit Dalmatia in 2011, from cruises to land tours. General Tours offers a 7-day "Gems of the Adriatic" tour that visits Zagreb, Split and Dubrovnik. Highlights include tours of each city with a personal guide and a scenic rail journey along the Adriatic. In April 2011, The Yachts of Seabourn features a 7-day Greek Isles and Dalmatian Coast cruise aboard the Seabourn Odyssey. Ports of call include Athens, Corfu, Kotor, Dubrovnik, Zadar and Venice. Contact your travel professional for more details.

ALASKA: EXPLORE ITS UNTAMED WILDERNESS

BY DAVID GAWKOWSKI

Panning for gold

In a way, Alaska is like that really big backyard one of your friends had growing up. You always looked forward to visiting, because there was so much room to roam, explore, play and discover. Similarly, the 49th state is America's big backyard.

With each visit, you can find out something new. A person could visit Alaska every month for the next 100 years and still not come close to seeing even half of the Great Land. Now those are estimated statistics, and yes, I just made them up. But still, it sounds true, doesn't it? And that's the funny thing about Alaska – not even hyperbole can do it justice. You have to see and experience it up-close in all its glory and grandeur to fully appreciate it.

A great place to start this journey of discovery is in Southeastern Alaska. Its busy history is one of gold mining, timber cutting and salmon fishing. Ketchikan, on the southwest side of Revillagigedo Island, grew up around salmon canneries and sawmills. Ketchikan's name supposedly comes from the native term "Katch Kanna," which roughly translates: "spread wings of a thundering eagle." At one time Ketchikan was proclaimed the "Salmon Capital of the World." An outstanding collection of totem poles make a visit to Ketchikan essential for anyone interested in Native art. Travelers flock to Ketchikan for their first look at the North Country, and are rarely disappointed.

Rafting adventure

Ketchikan

Called "Shee Atika" by the Tlingit Indians, then "New Archangel" by the Russians who ousted them, the town of Sitka boasts a rich multicultural heritage, and is often the starting point of an Alaska cruise. Two dozen of its attractions are on the National Register of Historic Places, including Castle Hill and Building 29, a structure built by the Russians in 1835. The Sheldon Jackson Museum exhibits one of Alaska's oldest native culture collections. Exciting shore excursions here include ocean raft adventures, an ATV expedition and a cycling tour. More relaxed diversions include nature walks through the forest and catamaran tours.

Few one-time boomtowns retain the flavor of the gold rush days like Skagway. This gateway to the Klondike is preserved as a national historic park with its rustic boardwalk and frontier-style storefronts. In addition to walking tours of the historic town, you can enjoy a ride on the White Pass Scenic Railway. It's one of the oldest narrow gauge railways in the U.S. and offers amazing views of the surrounding mountains. You can also choose to hunt for riches on a gold-panning excursion, glide through the forest on a zip-line adventure, or hop aboard a dog sled for a thrilling ride.

Perched on a thin strip of land at the mouth of Gold Creek, Juneau is arguably one of America's most beautiful state capitals, with the looming summits of Mt. Juneau and Mt. Roberts providing a gorgeous backdrop. Nearby, scenic Admiralty Island has the world's highest concentration of brown bears. If you are lucky enough to see one, it is a memory of a lifetime. Juneau is also where you can witness the amazing Mendenhall Glacier, which is 12 miles long and 1.5 miles wide. There are hiking trails into the area, and the Mendenhall Visitor Center is a wealth of information. For a bird's-eye view, the Mt. Roberts Tramway offers a short, six-minute trek to the top of Mt. Roberts, 1,800 feet above the city.

One port that is being seen on more 2011 Alaska cruise itineraries is Icy Strait Point. Also known as "Hoonah" (where the North wind doesn't blow), this small town is found on the leeward side of Chichagof Island. This is a spectacular spot for wildlife viewing as the animals easily outnumber the people. Watch for bears, eagles and humpback whales. The thriving salmon population also makes it a great spot for fly-fishing.

Look What's New in 2011

For the first time ever, Disney Cruise Line will sail Alaskan waters this year. Seven-night itineraries are available from May through August and sail roundtrip from Vancouver. Ports of call include Juneau, Skagway, Ketchikan and Tracy Arm.

Oceania Cruises also features 10- to 14-day voyages to Alaska aboard the Regatta. The 10-day Frontiers and Glaciers cruise visits Sitka, Icy Strait Point, Kodiak, Wrangell and Ketchikan while sailing roundtrip from Vancouver on June 7 and August 4, 2011. A 14-day Glacial Wilderness cruise sails roundtrip from San Francisco on May 12. Contact your travel professional for additional cruise dates.
